I have a Timex/Sinclair 2068 computer. I wanted to know if anyone out there has one who would like to share his/her experiences with it. I find it to be a very nice computer with tremendous capabilities for the money.

Now that Timex has gone out of the computer field, it appears that owners of Timex computers will have to rely on second sources for peripherals and software. A company in Connecticut called "Games To Learn By" is doing everything they can to locate these second sources. Last time I talked to them, (about a month ago), they weren't having much luck though.

Anyone out there have any info on second sources for owners of the 2068?
