While Otome villainess stories haven't had a lot of anime penetration as yet there are bunch of them in manga and especially manwha. But until today I never stopped to wonder if there could possible be a reason why a girl who loves an Otome game gets reincarnated as the villainess.

But thinking about this series...yeah there's a reason why this girl would be reincarnated as Katarina. Of all the characters in the game, that's the one who has the most similarity in personality. Sure she isn't a snob and she's friendly to everyone but she has no impulse control. She reaches out and grabs anything she wants, does anything she feels like doing without much concern for rules, politeness or the feelings of others. She'll stuff her face at a high society party throw a snake at the prince, then go climb a tree and only think about the possible consequences later.

So yeah, the only thing that keeps her from being a villainess is that the things she wants are largely harmless.
