Bt probably remembers this better than I do. However I know one of the things we talked about in the early days of the list was just how many people in Ys had done more than minor work in entertainment. I mean just look at the stuff Oppenheimer had done like Murphy Brown. Also a bunch of these guys were doing major work for Disney.(Bell and Cummings both worked as major characters on Darkwing Duck, one of hte few American Cartoons in the 80's that was actually good.) If I remeber right I think those 3 at the time were in the top 20 most prolific VA's in American cartoons. Too bad Ys was one of the very few games of that time with professional voice actors.

BTW Did anybody see Ys 6 on Judgement day on G4TV? Was it me or did Tommy not get the significance of Ys?(Really good VA and music.) Just found it funny since he's supposed to be Mr. Video Game Music.
