Hey,

Last year, I made a post on here referencing plans for a web site that would archive classic MSTings from the past. Well, better late than never, because it's finally done. Over the past two months, I've been putting together a web site called "The MSTing Canon," which I hope can serve as both a primer and archive for the history of MSTings. I've tried to touch on everything major that I can recall, but comments and suggestions are greatly appreciated if anyone notices anything that I might have missed/spoken incorrectly about. A link to the site can be found below, and I hope to make a post about this on the MST3K subreddit some time next week in order to see if there's any possible interest from newcomers.
