
Subject: Star Trek coincidence?

Posted by Dr. Ernest J. Primeau on Wed, 10 Oct 2012 00:48:46 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Ever notice that nobody on Star Trek (original series) is bald?

This is because they traveled back in time and realized my hairloss method worked to cure baldness.

This proves my method works. Ernie

Subject: Re: Star Trek coincidence?

Posted by Marcus \(not Farrel\) on Wed, 10 Oct 2012 00:52:27 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

On Oct 9, 5:48 pm, "Dr. Ernest J. Primeau" <ernie...@webtv.net> wrote:

> Ever notice that nobody on Star Trek (original series) is bald?

>

> This is because they traveled back in time and realized my hairloss method > worked to cure baldness.

>

> This proves my method works. Ernie

Captain Kirk wore a rug.

Another example that ernie`s method does (and never will) work.

Marcus

Subject: Re: Star Trek coincidence?

Posted by Marcus \(not Farrel\) on Wed, 10 Oct 2012 01:18:52 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Ernest J. Primeau wants to meet you within a 3 hour drive of Tampa, Florida in order get you to drop your pants and "boldly go where no man has gone before"...

Subject: Re: Star Trek coincidence?

Posted by YourName on Wed, 10 Oct 2012 03:06:56 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

In article <k52gll$spd$1@dont-email.me>, "Dr. Ernest J. Primeau" <ernietoo@webtv.net> wrote:

>

- > Ever notice that nobody on Star Trek (original series) is bald?
- >
- > This is because they traveled back in time and realized my hairloss method
- > worked to cure baldness.
- >
- > This proves my method works. Ernie

Depends what you mean by "bald". Harry Mudd was certainly quite well on his way to becoming bald. Most Klingon males are also almost bald (by human standards anyway).

Subject: Re: Star Trek coincidence?

Posted by Marcus \(not Farrel\) on Wed, 10 Oct 2012 04:39:43 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

On Oct 9, 8:06 pm, YourN...@YourISP.com (Your Name) wrote:

- > In article <k52gll$sp...@dont-email.me>, "Dr. Ernest J. Primeau"
- >
- > <ernie...@webtv.net> wrote:
- >
- >> Ever notice that nobody on Star Trek (original series) is bald?
- >
- >> This is because they traveled back in time and realized my hairloss method
- >> worked to cure baldness.
- >
- >> This proves my method works. Ernie
- >
- > Depends what you mean by "bald". Harry Mudd was certainly quite well on
- > his way to becoming bald. Most Klingon males are also almost bald (by
- > human standards anyway).

So are you telling us that ernie might be a Klingon?

She looks too pasty white to be one.

Marcus
