Omigosh I had the Inside Mac Volumes 1-6 or whatever, with the last one being HUMUNGOUS, a book that you could hurt yourself on if you dropped it on your foot... and full of really esoteric stuff like background sound playing, which it "generously" I think only mentioned in one paragraph on one page! Had to guess at how to get it working but did manage to do so! Based on it I wrote a background soundplayer that would play on many computers over ethernet from a CD-ROM on a single IIfx... at Broderbund. Sounded a little "thin" through the little Macintosh speakers.

Also figured out how to use the networking apis to look for other instances of a running app and shut it down (NetNazi). Fun stuff.

Then I got into NeXT where nearly all the apis were described in one book! Was a lot more fun + never looked back at MPW and the Mac Toolbox. Reminds me of some great times with early networking software at Broderbund tho'.

Brian,

I could do $200-$205 shipped for all the books. The delta would be if I have to break the shipment into two boxes to fit all the books and keep it within USPS limits.
