Hey all,

Wondering if anyone has a list of new C64 games available out there. I know the 8-bit guy has his PETSCII robots but who else is making games.

Sounds like you need a C64 games magazine to see everything that's been published for our beloved machine! Indeed Zzap!64 is back. I got an issue posted to me and it was really well done.

They are doing a kick starter for the 2021 Annual.

Awesome. Yeah, will have to look into that. I have yet to see any new Commodore mags.

Cheers.

This is the 2022 annual with all the games of the year as well as a coverdisk(!) like the old days!

Eww. The pioneers in corrupt computer games reviewing.

I could tell it was on the nose back when it was being published.. Then about a decade ago there was a documentary that included a lot of ZZap!64 employees that confirmed they were all getting payola from the big publishers.

I think budgets have shrunk a little since those days folks. Nowadays it's one of the best ways of finding out about the latest games and releases for the 64. There is also an Amiga version in the works AFAIK.

If you don't mind using YouTube, then there is a South African guy called Bastich-B who does great game reviews for the C64. His most recent was for a new 3D space trading game called Gates of the Ancients. Looks like a filled-poly version of Elite at the same framerate! Pretty amazing for a 1Mhz C64! Actually Bastich also does a 'best of genre' style video where he goes through game genres and looks at old and new games of the genre - some of these videos have been really eye opening.

Anyway, keep enjoying the 8-bit life...

You could always visit csdb.dk, do an advanced search, filter for C64 Games and select a date range you are interested in. Searching for C64 Games released between 1/1/20 and 12/31/20 for instance results in 119 matches.

Due to multiple releases (updates, bugfixes, etc.) this is not really the number of games released (on csdb), but it's about right.

Also there are games being commercially released and not listed (via this filter). However, there's plenty of new games to try out.

Also, keep watching itch.io for new releases. Here you can find not only free but also commercial releases such as Sam's Journey, The Shadow over Hawksmill, Neutron, Galencia and many more. It's the who-is-who among the digital 2nd distribution channel releases.

Primary source - in case you like physical releases - are online shops such as Psytronik or RGCD.

Regards,
Christian.

Hi Christian,

Thanks for the reply. This is great! We have our retro games right, but sometimes you just want to see what someone came up with after being influenced by those games.

Chris

Hi Daniel,

Thanks! I will add those titles to my list. Seems like a few could be some RPGs.

Chris

No list, and it's not exactly a new game as it is a port but...

Someone posted a link to this new port of Galaga (playable in browser via emulation), which I think is pretty excellent. Like if you're a fan of Galaga, the arcade game, the C=64 port is impressive as it really plays like the arcade:

If you are wanting a link to the new Zzap!64 here you go:

<https://www.patreon.com/zzapmagazine>

And ignore the messages about corruption, every mag had it anyhow, and Zzap was way less than the others back then. The current team, which includes myself, have no qualms about slagging off a game if it's bad. In fact, I'd probably say many other publications right now reviewing OVER SCORE games out of some perceived need to appease the publishers and programmers who do these things.
