The consensus is what? What do you mean by "PURGE PERSENT! BAN BUGSCAT! SEQUESTER SQVIGGLES!"?

Just ignore the idiot. It's a brainless moronic troll who usually cross-posts to a wrestling newsgroup as well. :-(

So that aside, what did you guys think of the Blood and Chrome mini-series?

Haven't seen it and never intend to see it. No idea if it has even played here in New Zealand, but I have absolutely no interest in Ron Moore's garbage-ised version of Battlestar Galactica nor its spin-offs.

Eh, Blood and Chrome was fun though. Entertaining at least. If nothing else, check out the first 5 minutes. :)

Not even remotely interested. There's only one real "Battlestar Galactica" and that's the one created by Glen Larson. :-)

I would watch this show if only I didn't have too many other shows to watch atm.

I did like Caprica, especially the interplay between father & daughter.

nuBSG was rather patchy, like the curate's egg. I thought there were some good episodes & I did like the sexy Baltar scenes. Overall, in retrospect it was rather a disappointment to me.

Good to hear.

So there is a mini-series; there is also a movie?
If so, does it precede the mini-series? or something else?

Ron Moore's so-called "Battlestar Galactica" was a disappoint to many people, especially since before he took over it was going to be a proper continuation of the real "Battlestar Galactica" (may or may not have been Ron Moore's fault).

The big problem is that there are now two very different versions of "Battlestar Galactica" (only the original version of which is the real one) and one more in the planning (which has stupidly been described as fitting somehow into both versions!), plus the still-planned-but-unlikely-to-happen movie version of the real "Battlestar Galactica" ... and that's before some other idiot comes along and tries to "reboot" it again. :-(

Wow... you are more bitter than most classic fans I know. I like it! :P

Ummm... where to start on this? Well, I'm a classic fan, and there is some good activity on the internet for the classic fans and I basically stick to that. On one place called "Colonial Fleets" which is the hub of the classic activity we normally don't talk about "that other Galactica". But the only person more bitter about the new series was Dirk Benedict himself. So in a thread we talked about our thoughts on the new series, and here were my thoughts...

<http://www.colonialfleets.com/forums/showpost.php?p=311409&postcount=10>

Basically my comment comes around the idea that it is hard to get into an environment where people who have never been to Earth, heading to Earth, 100,000 years before our modern time are wearing suit and ties and firing guns with bullets.

Just saying. :)

Yeh, it sucks having to enter the search engine for "Battlestar Galactica" and getting both shows. But happy to say classic is still around in a fan sense.

You know, the Blood and Chrome is what I waiting on since Battlestar Galactica was rebooted. Had action, more Vipers, fun pilot banter, no suits and ties, and shooting down classic looking Cylon raiders and fighting Cylons. Good stuff.

- > I did like Caprica, especially the interplay between
- > father& daughter.

I watched Caprica hoping there would be some of the Cylon/Human war stuff. There was not. But there were some interesting moments, like the time they illustrated the pain the Cylon (sometimes shown as the daughter) when they commanded the Cylon to rip its arm off. Powerful moment.

I think I got off the new series at the first episode. Now a lot of New BSG fans say they were hooked by the second or third episode.

Here's the problem, and I say this time after time after time...

If New BSG had been named anything other than Battlestar Galactica I would have LOVED the series. I am watching Space Above and Beyond right now... VERY much like the new BSG, and I adore that show.

But for me, I went into the New BSG thinking action, Vipers, fun pilot banter, fighting Cylons, and .. blasters. I liked the hope the classic show gave. The dignity humanity had in the face of adversity. How humanity was priceless against wave after wave of appliances. Great mythology with a religious overtone, etc.

The New BSG had most of that, just felt like I needed a bath after watching the mini-series. :)

It amazes me how the classic BSG had such a cool spark and how the new BSG has this... anti-spark. :P

It is like getting chocolate cake made with salt instead of sugar. But if you like salt it is perfect.

Well Blood and Chrome was a like a 10 part mini series, showing 15 minutes at a time on YouTube. And now they are showing the entire thing all together.

Probably the best BSG they've made yet, and probably won't be a regular series. Figures.

It's not just "Battlestar Galactica". I detest all idiotic in-name-only "reboots".

If they want to make a show that's different, then just make a new show. Why bother stealing the old show's name and then making it into something very different? It's moronically stupid ... but then Hollyweird and management in general ARE moronically stupid! :-\

Real "Battlestar Galactica" will always be around in a fan sense, but in the public sense it's been replaced by Ron Moore's garbagised version. It's extremely unlikely real "Battlestar Galactica" will ever be added to properly, despite Glen Larson's attempts. Having two (or even three if the other fool gets his way) different versions existing under the same name is silly enough, having them competing against each other at the same time is also moronically stupid.

I stopped bothering to watch after about the first 15 minutes of the pilot episode when they had to put in an idiotic sex scene just to retain pervert viewers. It was obviously going to be nothing but downhill from there. :-\

(In fact, if I remember correctly, I almost switched it off within the first five minutes when they insisted on shoving a camera up along the blonde woman's legs.)

So you are saying that Classic Battlestar Galactica did not have eye candy, or have interesting situations for the adult audience viewers?

Yeh I won't lie, having to weed through the other Battlestar Galactica to find information on the Galactica I like is annoying.

So you're saying they proved she was a real blonde by establishing that the collars matched the cuffs.

Really? Is that why it went several years?

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Battlestar_Galactica_%282004_TV_series%29

The series features Edward James Olmos and Mary McDonnell, and garnered a wide range of critical acclaim, which included a Peabody Award, the Television Critics Association's Program of the Year Award, a placement inside Time's 100 Best TV Shows of All-TIME,[1] and Emmy nominations for its writing, directing, costume design, visual effects, sound mixing, and sound editing, with Emmy wins for both visual effects and sound editing. In 2013 TV Guide included it in its list of The 60 Greatest Dramas of All Time.

How do you know if you only watched one episode of BSG?

Which Moore's BSG had except for ray guns...

The old BSG was a kiddie show. With robot doggies.

Moore's BSG was more a tasty steak.

So, you say you only watched 15 minutes of a several year run?????

Oh dear, here we go with the argumentative dimbulbs who can't read. :-\

Yes, I have internet, but it's a dial-up connection which makes trying to stream or download video highly pointless ... plus, if you'd actually bothered to read what I wrote you'd see that it says "I have absolutely no interest in Ron Moore's garbage-ised version of Battlestar Galactica nor its spin-offs".

Maybe words of one syllable will help: I do not want to watch it.

Where exactly did I say "nobody liked it"?? :-\

Most actual fans of the real "Battlestar Galactica" wanted a proper continuation. They liked the show how it was, that's why they called "fans". Most were disappointed that it was changed to be a reboot, including some of those who did like Ron Moore's version as well.

Five minutes is enough to tell anyone with more than one braincell that Ron More's version is different to Glen Larson's real "Battlestar Galactica". (Of course, anyone with a brain already knew that because the people making it had been saying it all along.)

The 15 minutes or so that I did watch was enough for me personally to know I didn't like it and wasn't going to bother wasting any more time watching it. People with brains don't actually need to sit through numerous hours of drivel, only to complain at the end that they didn't like it and moronically whine " I want X hours of my life back".

Unlike Your Name I watched all of it & did like a big part of it, but there were parts I did not like.

Oh dear, here we go with the "it's garbage-ised and I know this without

You can cite a poll or something that supports the claim

Most actual fans of the real "Battlestar Galactica" wanted a proper continuation?

and that

Most were disappointed that it was changed to be a reboot

Or did you just pull those out of the air?

People watched it and blew the old one away in the ratings.

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Battlestar_Galactica_%282004_TV_series%29

The series features Edward James Olmos and Mary McDonnell, and garnered a wide range of critical acclaim, which included a Peabody Award, the Television Critics Association's Program of the Year Award, a placement inside Time's 100 Best TV Shows of All-TIME,[1] and Emmy nominations for its writing, directing, costume design, visual effects, sound mixing, and sound editing, with Emmy wins for both visual effects and sound editing. In 2013 TV Guide included it in its list of The 60 Greatest Dramas of All Time.

You said it was a disappointment to many. NO ONE said "nobody liked it" except for YOU, in a weak attempt to dodge.

Here's you able to judge from 15 minutes of tjhe pilot what the acclaimed series was really like

The 15 minutes or so that I did watch was enough for me personally to know I didn't like it and wasn't going to bother wasting any more time watching it.

Blood and Chrome was decent enough, though I thought the actor playing Adama a bit on the weak side, even for a young officer, and his "interaction" with the peace-seeking diplomat a bit stereotyped and trite although it did give her a chance to utter a great line about regret. The all-green screen CGI was better than in other Syfy shows and we got more a sense of depth in the far shots. Who knows, combining B&C with Caprica might have been a great show.
