

---

Subject: Star Wars: Admiral Motti actor has died
Posted by CyberkNight on Wed, 17 Apr 2013 13:35:57 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

After defying Lord Vader aboard the original Death Star, Admiral Motti became a symbol of the Empire's over-confidence. But the actor Richard LeParmentier has become a favourite amongst fans... and now, has sadly passed away.

Richard LeParmentier, who will be remembered for his role in 'Star Wars Episode IV: A New Hope', was an accomplished actor who appeared in a number of classic films - performing alongside James Caan in the '70s classic 'Rollerball' and appearing as Lt. Santino in the animated classic, 'Who Framed Roger Rabbit'.

In fact, in his long career, Richard delivered a number of iconic lines... including the classic "Now that's what I call one seriously disturbed toon." But he will always be remembered for his over-confidence in the Empire. And perhaps his lack of faith (which Lord Vader found disturbing)...

http://uk.movies.yahoo.com/star-wars-admiral-motti-actor-die d-125400936.html

---