GREETINGS,

I am a Ray Bradbury fanatic and am trying to develop a complete Bradbury collection. I have all in-print Bradbury books and many out of print ones including some that were never for sale in the U.S. (specifically "The Day it Rained Forever" from Penguin books), and many anthologies containing Bradbury's work. My problem is that I can find no books that I don't already have. I have tried title searches through various used book stores on the titles that I already know and after six months have come up with one possible lead on one book. I have also searched through every used book store I can get my hands on, and I have searched through "Books In Print". I found nothing!

Does anyone know where I can find other out of print Bradbury books or even where I can find a list of all Bradbury titles ever printed? It doesn't matter if some of them are gatherings of stories printed in other books -- I told you I'm a fanatic. Also: how would I go about finding titles and doing searches on my own? This information would be useful for fanatics of any author.

Thanks

Kevin A. Cheek
