I am interested in getting a new 300 baud autoanswer/autodial modem.

Around here there are only three types available the commodore 1660 (an improved 1650,I'm told), the MIGHTY-MO ,and the POCKETMODEM.

I'm afraid the people who sell these modems don't know the difference and

I was hoping that someone out there in

NET land could give me the info.

I need to know how compatable they are with the 64 and how reliable they are.

If sufficient interest is generated I will post a summary to the Net.

Thanks in advance,

Rick
