[Die you silly line!]

Does anyone have any comments they want to make on the new AT&T Unix PC that was introduced last Tuesday (3/26/85)? All I know is what the huge ad in USA Today said: Runs System V, built-in 1200 baud modem, 12 simultaneous windows, 512K Ram (Exapandible to 2M), and a 10M or 20M hard disk. I'd like to hear things like: what is the base unit cost? How much for expansions? How compatible is the code generated with other System V's? Any other comments/faults/good points worth mentioning?
