CROW: Oh, these monorail designers, they have a one-track mind.

MIKE: Why do you lash out like that?

CROW: I don't know.

TOM: Here comes my train, I gotta catch it, here comes my train,
I gotta catch it, I gotta catch -- never mind.

CROW: Isn't it great there are only white people here?

MIKE: We're crushing pigeons, it's fun!

TOM: Yes, Seattle, like a beautiful child growing up free and wild.

MIKE: I'm going insane, I really am!

CROW: Look, there's Pearl Jam!

CROW: That evening the oppressive cloud of The Phone Company hung heavy over the world.

TOM: THE PHONES! THEY'RE COMING!

CROW: AAAH!

CROW: "How do animals learn? Well as long as they learn to taste good,
I don't care."
