Yes, I believe some of the best "Host Segments" were compiled onto tapes at one point. Perhaps these are documented somewhere at mst3kinfo.com?

--- Also note that Tom Servo, in part 3 of the previously linked "War of the Colossal Beast" (broadcast on November 30, 1991), states:

TOM SERVO: "Yes yes, why not, Mister Crow? I don't think we should stop there. Let's break down all the barriers. Hairy men in Spartan costumes holding bake sales on shady boulevards. Naked jockstrap wrestling. Big wonderful..."

JOEL: "Gentlemen I have commercial sign, I'm sorry."

--- Thusly predicting the movie "300" sixteen years early.

Yes, any DVD sets you see contain the full episodes, including the "host segments" in between the theater segments. Somebody already told you which ep that particular invention exchange is in. It's not out on home video, but, as you saw, it -- and a lot of eps -- are on youtube. You can also dl episodes on Netflix and i-Tunes. For more info, stop by www.mst3kinfo.com.
