
Subject: Songs I didn't know there were names for Posted by nebusj on Sat, 03 Mar 2012 05:26:35 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Wow. I always thought this was just the Disco Music Button on the soundtrack board used by Everyone Doing Movies Or TV Shows That Can Justify Having Disco Music. But no, it's 'Pick Up The Pieces' by average White Band. Who knew, and why wasn't getting reports on this?

<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=3aGBXrJ6e34>

--

<http://nebusresearch.wordpress.com/>
Current Entry: An Overused Intermediacy

Joseph Nebus
<http://wp.me/p1RYhY-6i>

Subject: Re: Songs I didn't know there were names for Posted by Clifford Blau on Sun, 04 Mar 2012 19:27:10 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

On Sat, 3 Mar 2012 05:26:35 +0000 (UTC), nebusj-@-rpi-.edu (Joseph Nebus) wrote:

> Wow. I always thought this was just the Disco Music Button > on the soundtrack board used by Everyone Doing Movies Or TV Shows That > Can Justify Having Disco Music. But no, it's 'Pick Up The Pieces' by > average White Band. Who knew, and why wasn't getting reports on this?

A. Because it never occurred to us that there was anyone who didn't know the name of this big hit (#1 in Billboard)..

B. This song has nothing to do with disco; it is funk.

"Curse you, Don Tickles, Notary Public!"
