Rifftrax did a bad job with Santa and the Ice Cream Bunny, there was a lot of stupid yelling that doesn't fit with the movie. So cut out the stupid improv guys, you can do better than that! You need to go back to writing out your commentary out first.

I haven't seen the Ice Cream Bunny; I'm just not very good at buying stuff online so I really feel better waiting for a live show or at least a DVD to buy.

I've heard, though, about it.

It is a rifftrax DVD; I won't even consider a rifftrax download, because downloads are a waste of money.

Rifftrax DVDs have the great feature of including a non-riffed audio track version too, so the rifftrax version or the movie with the original audio could be considered a free bonus.

I can't even remotely agree. Firstly, IMHO, none of the lines sounded improvised. Secondly, the parts where Kevin or Mike yelled at the ridiculously bad costumes ruined the movie for you? Really? But more importantly, this was a brilliant riff. Seriously, I've seen practically every episode of MST3k and if this had aired in, say, season 6, it would be one of those riffs that instantly leap into people's minds when MST3k was mentioned, like Mitchell or Manos. I enjoyed it that much.

Oh and hey Joseph. Long time, no see.

Hi there! Aw, man, too long, yes. Sorry I haven't been quicker on the draw in answering but I've been out of my normal routine.

I just want to say that as far as the movie goes, "Santa and the ICB" made "Santa Claus Conquers the Martians" look like "It's a Wonderful Life". And frankly, I don't blame Kevin for screaming.
